

MAGNOLIA HOMES

THE MAGNOLIA STORY

In 1987, Karen Garner took a leap of faith by starting her own home building business as a female in a male-dominated industry. She knew she could bring “that extra touch” that makes a house a home and personalize the way homes were built in Memphis, TN, and surrounding areas. When her son, Reggie Garner, Jr., joined the team, he brought about qualities that have helped shape Magnolia Homes into what it is today. Much of which, we know he learned from watching his mom all his life: honesty, intentionality, reliability, and innovativeness.

Magnolia Homes continues to provide intentionally-designed, quality-built, personalized homes to their discerning home buyers thanks to the high level of expertise, heart, and soul put into each home we build. “Perseverance and a positive attitude has guided our business for the past 38 years and personally for my entire life,” says Karen Garner. “That extra touch” is not just a slogan for Magnolia Homes; it’s what we do and believe in every single day. Magnolia Homes would not be what it is today without the unwavering support from the towns we build in, the people we build for, and the employees we build with.
